INTRODUCTION.

THE valuable and important Collection (of which this is the First Portion only) is the result of many years' ardent pursuit and study by the late Mr. Bernard Roth, who, like many of his contemporaries, was guided more by the inclination to acquire rare coins in the finest condition, than to form a collection remarkable for size and completeness, as were the Montagu and Murdoch cabinets. He was fortunate enough to obtain many fine specimens of the rarest and most desirable English gold and silver coins. A large number of the coins were purchased from such famous collections as the Shepherd, Brice, Montagu, Marsham, Murdoch, Rashleigh and Moon cabinets, or from others equally well-known; the pedigrees have been carefully verified by reference to each sale quoted, so that they may be accepted as correct, and also taken as evidence of Mr. Bernard Roth's sagacious method of collecting.

There are especially interesting series of Early British and Anglo-Saxon coins, but perhaps Mr. Roth's Pennies of the late Norman period (Henry I, and Stephen) are his best and most complete series; they include many great rarities, as well as some unpublished and presumably unique pieces.

Among the most noteworthy coins in this portion of the collection are the following: Tincommius, Quarter Staters, N (15-16); Veriea, Staters, N (17-18), and Quarter Staters, N (19-20); Epatiecus, Stater, N (22), and Quinarius, R (23); Cunobeline, Staters, N (24-25); Quarter Stater, N (26); Quinarius, R (27); Cupped 3. Æ with pegasus (28); Addedomaros, Staters, N (30-31); Dubnovellaunus, Stater, N (32); Brigantes, Stater, N, said to be unique (34); Anglo-Saxon gold Sceatta (44); Pennies of Offa King of Mercia, with, and without bust (53-54); Cynethryth, widow of Offa (55); Ceolnoth

 From the L. A. Lawrence, 1903 (lot 102) collection. Mr. Andrew, in his "Numismatic History of Henry I," says "This coin further supports the suggestion (on p. 132) that the Abbot of St. Augustine's maintained his right to a moneyer at Canterbury."

J. A.* XV), fine, and of extreme rarity, if not unique, but cracked at edge [Pl. III] 1

 In reference to this extraordinary piece, Mr. W. J. Andrew wrote to Mr. Bernard Roth: "It is not one of Henry I, but belongs to the class of so-called Baronial coins of the next reign. Mr. L. A. Lawrence has one identical with it, both obverse and reverse, except that the obv. legend is "WILLELMVS"; yours is one of the most interesting in the whole series." Mr. Andrew may be right in his assumption, but as a sale catalogue is not the place to discuss the correct or incorrect attribution of a coin, we must leave the solution to the purchaser, who may or may not be disposed to accept Mr. Andrew's suggestion. This coin is from the Hollis, Dymock, 1858 (lot 184), Murchison, 1866 (lot 27), Whitbourn, 1869 (lot 145), Neck, and Webb, 1894 (lot 27), and Montagu, 1896 (lot 291) sales.

111 LONDON (Hks. 262, *W. J. III] 1

 From sale at Sotheby's, 17/5/1905 (lot 217). This coin is now considered to be an ecclesiastical piece of the Abbey of Reading, and struck by one of the royal moneyers at London, who coined and held an exchange there for and on behalf of the Abbot. Some of the coins thus struck for the Abbey are distinguished from the ordinary currency of London by annulets, but in this case the more locally interesting mark of the escallop shell (the arms of the Abbey) has been adopted, and it is the earliest use of this abbatial mark of the Reading coinage, as it is not employed again until the reign of Edward III (cf. Num. Chron. IV, S. 1, pp. 371-8).

 From the Tyssen 1802 (lot 1131), Cuff 1854 (lot 759), Wigan, and Marsham 1888 (lot 267) collections. The attribution of this piece is that of Mr. W. J. Andrew, who suggests that this nobleman resorted to the old badge or arms of Edward the Confessor at Derby, during the captivity of Stephen, in the summer of 1141.

UNCERTAIN BARONIAL, temp. Stephen.

139 BRISTOL (Hks. 270, var.), IOh . . . . L: profile bust crowned to right, with sceptre; rev. TVRIL: ON⁝⁝: cross moline fleured inwardly, with four pellets outside, fine for this piece, and very rare [Pl. IV] 1

 Owing to the defacement of the mint name, and the knowledge that TVRIL was a Bristol moneyer, it has been attributed to this city. This coin is from the Wakeford, Brice, and Montagu, 1896 (lot 364) collections.

140 BRISTOL (Hks. 270, var.), obverse entirely defaced by deep lines cut in the die, and crossing in all directions; rev. GVRDAN [ON BRIS], cross moline fleured inwardly, with four annulets outside tressure (for this moneyer and mint cf. lot 487, *also Num.  This is attributed by Mr. W. J. Andrew to the above nobleman and partisan of Stephen, who, he suggests, stamped his armorial cross on the money issued from Norwich and Thetford.

WM. PEVERELL EARL OF NOTTINGHAM.

142 NOTTINGHAM (Hks. 270), STEFENE R, the king's bust defaced by small cross pattée, with pellet; rev. +SƑEIN : ON : SNOT, cross moline fleured inwardly (wt. 16·1 grs.), fine and extremely rare [Pl. IV] 1

 Mr. W. J. Andrew attributes this piece to Wm. Peverell, who he states, placed his arms on the Nottingham money. This coin is from the Nottingham find, and Toplis collection.

PENNIES, READING ƑEREREIL.

143 LONDON (Hks. 632), +ƑERE . . ., profile bust of king to right, with sceptre; rev. +AL[FR]ED ON : LVN, cross moline fleured inwardly, fine and very rare, but badly centred on obverse [Pl. IV] 1

 These coins were formerly attributed to Roger Earl of Warwick by some of the best numismatists of that day, and, so far as the legend is concerned, apparently with more reason than the present suggestion that it is a blundered imitation of IMPERATRIX on a coin of the Empress Matilda, which seems to be an impracticable solution, for if it is a blundered imitation at all, it seems more likely to be (according to Mr. Brooke) of HENRIL (Henry the Earl); however, it is sufficient for our purpose now, to describe these pieces as Pennies reading ƑEREREIL, whatever that may signify.

144 CANTERBURY (Hks. 632; engraved Num. Chron. 1883, III, no. 3), +ƒEREREIL, profile bust crowned to right, with sceptre; rev. +ƒILLEM : ON : LANƒ, cross moline fleured inwardly, fine and extremely rare [Pl. IV] 1

 From the Tyssen, Sir H. Ellis, and Marsham, 1888 (lot 254) collections. Hawkins, third edition, p. 174, describes this coin as "probably one of the latest of Henry I's, if indeed it was not struck by Henry II during Stephen's reign." Mr. W. J. Andrew is in agreement with the latter suggestion, which is probably correct.

OMITTED IN THEIR PROPER PLACES.

 Mr. W. J. Andrew states that this is an issue of Stephen's money from dies prepared by Scottish die-sinkers at Carlisle, and struck there.

 From the Nottingham find, 1880. The Montagu, 1896 (lot 340), specimen of this type was said to be unique, but there is another in the National Collection (Hks. third edit. p. 179, no. 6), and the above is the third example.

156 NORTHAMPTON (Hks. 276), +STIEFNE:R, full-faced bust crowned, but without sceptre; rev. +PAEN:ON:NORH: cross potent with annulet in centre, within a tressure fleured inwardly, the whole enclosed in inner circle, very fine and of the highest rarity, perhaps the rarest type of Stephen's coins [Pl. IV] 1

 Neither the well-known and important Rashleigh collection, nor that of Carlyon-Britton, contained an example of the penny of this rare type, the former only possessing a cut halfpenny of Hereford (lot 612); there is, however, a specimen in the National Collection.

 There was no specimen of this mint, under this reign, in the Rashleigh, 1909, or Carlyon-Britton, 1916, sales. This is from the Shepherd, 1885 (lot 123), and Montagu, 1896 (lot 316) sales.

(variety of Hks. 271), extremely fine, of the highest rarity, and unpublished [PL. IV] 1

 There was a penny of Stephen in the Murdoch, 1903 (lot 258) sale, which is almost identical with this piece, except in the reading of the obv. legend, which on Mr. Roth's specimen is continuous and extremely clear; the rev. legend on both coins appears to be the same, whatever it signifies. As the Murdoch example was believed to be unique, the Roth coin so far is only the second known.

167 Irish imitation of Stephen (Hks. 270 var.), the first portion of legend is illegible, but the latter part appears to read IIIIIIO, crowned bust of rude work, with sceptre to right, completely within inner circle; rev. a partly illegible reading similar to that on obv., cross moline fleured inwardly; and an ordinary Penny of Stephen as Hks. 270, with illegible legends, which Mr. Andrew considers a specimen of "cold striking," the former with fractured edge, otherwise in good state, is said to be unique 2
